Panelists:

Lawrence Levenson, M.D.

Dr. Lawrence Levenson is a Training and Supervising Analyst at the Western New England Institute for Psychoanalysis. An esteemed teacher and clinician, Dr. Levenson chairs a study group at the Western New England on psychoanalytic process and technique. Among his publications, he has written on the contributions of Paul Gray's work and defense analysis. He has also served as an associate member of the editorial board of the International Journal of Psychoanalysis (IJP) and in 2007 was the Visiting Scholar at the Paul Gray Visiting Scholar Weekend at the Baltimore-Washington Psychoanalytic Institute. Dr. Levenson practices psychoanalysis and psychiatry in New Haven.

Kay M. Long, Ph.D.

Dr. Kay Long is an Associate Clinical Professor of Psychiatry, Yale School of Medicine, and a Training and Supervising Analyst at the Western New England Institute for Psychoanalysis. Dr. Long has written on aspects of female development as well as the work of Melanie Klein. She has served as an associate editor for the IJP. A highly respected clinician and much sought after mentor, her current teaching and research interests involve neo-Kleinian approaches to clinical theory and technique. She is in the private practice of psychoanalysis and psychotherapy in New Haven.

Gail S. Reed, Ph.D.

Dr. Gail Reed is a Training and Supervising Analyst at the Berkshire Psychoanalytic Institute and at the Training Institute of the New York Freudian Society. A renowned author and speaker, she has authored numerous important studies on a wide variety of clinical and applied psychoanalytic subjects including a book on the transference neurosis, articles on technical issues such as reconstruction and the effect of relativism on clinical truth. In 1985 she won the JAPA Prize for a paper comparing the rules of understanding in self psychology and classical analysis. Dr. Reed also serves on the editorial boards of The Psychoanalytic Quarterly and JAPA where she is the Associate Editor for Foreign Books and is a member of the Publication Committee of the International Psychoanalytical Association. She practices psychoanalysis and psychotherapy in English and in French in New York City.

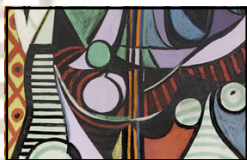

USING TRANSFERENCE & Countertransference IN OUR CLINICAL WORK

THREE CONTEMPORARY VIEWS

As psychoanalytic psychotherapists, transference and countertransference phenomena are the cornerstone of our therapeutic endeavors. Yet rarely do we have the opportunity to consider varying viewpoints side by side. Many of us, though familiar with Freud's traditional formulations, make use of contemporary understandings of the roles of transference and countertransference.

In this conference, three master therapists, Drs. Levenson, Long, and Reed, offer their own approaches to working with transference and countertransference manifestations in psychotherapy through the use of clinical theory and case material. As a means of exploring their convergences and divergences, ample time will be provided for the panelists to respond to each other and to the conference participants.

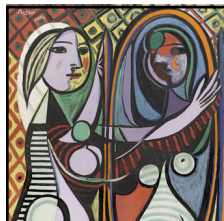

Ample time will be allotted for audience participation.
